Pidgin and Creole Tense-mood-aspect Systems John Victor Singler, 1990 For review see Mark Sebba in New West Indian Guide Nieuwe West Indische Gids vol 66 no 3 4 1992 p 288 290 Creoles, Their Substrates, and Language Typology Claire Lefebvre, 2011-01-01 Since creole languages draw their properties from both their substrate and superstrate sources the typological classification of creoles has long been a major issue for creolists typologists and linguists in general Several contradictory proposals have been put forward in the literature For example creole languages typologically pair with their superstrate languages Chaudenson 2003 with their substrate languages Lefebvre 1998 or even creole languages are alike Bickerton 1984 such that they constitute a definable typological class McWhorter 1998 This book contains 25 chapters bearing on detailed comparisons of some 30 creoles and their substrate languages As the substrate languages of these creoles are typologically different the detailed investigation of substrate features in the creoles leads to a particular answer to the question of how creoles should be classified typologically The bulk of the data show that creoles reproduce the typological features of their substrate languages This argues that creoles cannot be claimed to constitute a definable typological class Pidgins and Creoles beyond Africa-Europe Encounters Isabelle Buchstaller, Anders Holmberg, Mohammad Almoaily, 2014-01-15 Most of what we know about pidgin and creole languages is the result of research into contact languages that developed as a consequence of European expansion into Africa and the Caribbean The narrow focus on European lexifier and West African substrate languages has resulted in insufficient investigation of other contact varieties Even more perniciously lesser known and often under described contact languages have not been taken into consideration when formulating supposedly general tendencies about the linguistic properties of contact languages This volume aims to give a platform to research on the history genesis and typology of a number of non European language based contact languages A more encompassing and diverse data base will contribute to more accurate and comprehensive inventories of the typological features of contact languages Creole Studies - Phylogenetic Approaches Peter Bakker, Finn Borchsenius, Carsten Levisen, Eeva M. Sippola, 2017-05-31 This book launches a new approach to creole studies founded on phylogenetic network analysis Phylogenetic approaches offer new visualisation techniques and insights into the relationships between creoles and non creoles creoles and other contact varieties and between creoles and lexifier languages With evidence from creole languages in Africa Asia the Americas and the Pacific the book provides new perspectives on creole typology cross creole comparisons and creole semantics The book offers an introduction for newcomers to the fields of creole studies and phylogenetic analysis Using these methods to analyse a variety of linguistic features both structural and semantic the book then turns to explore old and new questions and problems in creole studies Original case studies explore the differences and similarities between creoles and propose solutions to the problems of how to classify creoles and how they formed and developed The book provides a fascinating glimpse into the unity and heterogeneity of creoles and the areal influences on their development It also provides metalinguistic discussions of the creole concept from different perspectives Finally the book reflects critically on the findings and methods and sets new agendas for future studies Creole Studies has been written for a broad readership of scholars and students in the fields of contact linguistics biolinguistics sociolinguistics language typology and semantics

- 1 verb focus predicate clefting and predicate doubling
- 2 focus and anti focus
- 3 focus and pronominals
- 4 discourse patterning
- 5 grammatical relations

Haitian Creole Newspaper Reader Kate Howe, 1990 This reader follows the same basic format as others in the Newspaper Reader series published by Dunwoody Press with the difference that most of the reading selections herein are transcriptions of radio broadcasts rather than newspaper articles The book is intended to provide students of Haitian Creole who already have some knowledge of the language with further practice in reading on a wide variety of topics thus also increasing their familiarity with some aspects of Haitian life in the broadest sense The texts vary in difficulty from elementary to advanced with the majority ranging from 2 to 3 on the US Government Interagency Language

Roundtable scale All the texts were originally produced by native Haitian Creole speakers for native Haitian Creole speakers Those reading selections transcribed from radio broadcasts were recorded in Haiti between 7 and 25 November 1988 Three selections are samples of graffiti found in the slums of La Saline and one is a political slogan on a main street in the Pacot neighborhood of the capital The remainder are articles or letters reproduced with the kind permission of the weekly newspaper Ha ti Progr s
