Worlding Sei Shônagon Valerie Henitiuk,2012-06-16 The Makura no S shi or The Pillow Book as it is generally known in English is a collection of personal reflections and anecdotes about life in the Japanese royal court composed around the turn of the eleventh century by a woman known as Sei Sh nagon Its opening section which begins haru wa akebono or spring dawn is arguably the single most famous passage in Japanese literature Throughout its long life The Pillow Book has been translated countless times It has captured the European imagination with its lyrical style compelling images and the striking personal voice of its author Worlding Sei Sh nagon guides the reader through the remarkable translation history of The Pillow Book in the West gathering almost fifty translations of the spring dawn passage which span one hundred and thirty five years and sixteen languages Many of the translations are made readily available for the first time in this study The versions collected in Worlding Sei Sh nagon are an enlightening example of the many ways in which translations can differ from their source text undermining the idea of translation as the straightforward transfer of meaning from one language to another one culture to another By tracing the often convoluted trajectory through which a once wholly foreign literary work becomes domesticated or resists domestication this compilation also exposes the various historical ideological or other forces that inevitably shape our experience of literature for better or for worse
